

Why Ultimate?

You may not be a software firm, but we are. By allowing us to solve the everyday problems of software development—from data validation to graph and chart design—you’ll free up your team’s creative headspace so they can create brilliant, efficient business solutions for you.

Your users will love the wide variety of options GrapeCity offers: ComponentOne Studio offers full support for desktop to web apps; Wijmo includes our same high-quality controls, but written in JavaScript for HTML5 applications; and Xuni allows them to work with truly native mobile apps—all in one package, complete with support and an active community. With quality assurance, research, updates, and extensibility built into the subscription fee, you can expect no hidden costs.

Give your developers the best tool for their success with GrapeCity’s Ultimate component suite.

Focus Your Resources on the Business, not Software

Keep the focus on your business with Ultimate. Our multi-platform, comprehensive collection of controls allows your developers to work on brilliant solutions for your firm instead of the minutiae of basic functionality. With its effortless out-of-the-box integration, you’ll save time and opportunity costs every day.

Provide the Clean Code They Want, with the Flexibility You Need

We’re well-respected for our flexible, “clean” API—when your developers use our products, they’ll find it’s as easy to use as-is as it is to customize. You’ll save a great deal in time and frustration just because your developers will have a low learning curve and enjoy using the product.

Access Cross-Platform, Multi-Device Support in a Mature Product

Our products are well-established, mature, heavily supported, frequently updated, and share a similar structure. Mobile touch support, cross-platforms, etc., are built in. If you need to access a graph on your phone as well as your laptop, your developers can deploy smoothly across devices to implement new features. In addition, we have three updates a year, all driven by user feedback and the general direction of the market.

Eliminate Hidden Costs

All of the “hidden costs” of development—quality assurance, research, updates, extensibility—are built into the subscription fee. Developers can spend days trying to fix a bug in home-grown code, but with our controls, it’s all built in.
